

If I Was Going On A Trip

This game my wife made up to play with our young grandchildren. The object is for young children to think of think of people, food and things that start with progressing letters in the alphabet that they would take on a trip. You need at least one adult and two young children.

The first person starts out by saying: "If I was going on a trip and could take only one thing that starts with the letter A, I would take an ..." Then the next person repeats: "If I was going on a trip and could take only one thing that starts with the letter A, I would take an ..." (They state something other than what the first person said.) Then the next person repeats: "If I was going on a trip and could take only one thing that starts with the letter A, I would take an ..." (They state something other than what the other persons said.)

After the last person, then the first person starts: "If I was going on a trip and could take only one thing that starts with the letter B, I would take a ..." Then the next person repeats: "If I was going on a trip and could take only one thing that starts with the letter B, I would take a ..." (They state something other than what the first person said.)" Then the next person repeats: "If I was going on a trip and could take only one thing that starts with the letter B, I would take a ..." (They state something other than what the other persons said.)

This continues through the alphabet.

Charles Stambaugh NHBDevotions@gmail.com

This is licensed under the Creative Commons Attribution-Noncommercial 4.0 International License under New Heart Beat Ministries. You may not use the material for commercial purposes. It is not copyright material, which means you do not need permission to reproduce, distribute, edit, remix, or build upon.

If I Was Going On Noah's Ark

The object is for young children to think of animals, food and supplies that start with progressing letters of the alphabet that they would take on Noah's Ark during Bible Times. You need at least one adult and two young children.

The first person starts out by saying: "If I was going on Noah's ark and could take only one thing that starts with the letter A, I would take an ...". Then the next person repeats: "If I was going on Noah's ark and could take only one thing that starts with the letter A, I would take an ..." (They state something other than what the first person said.) Then the next person repeats: "If I was going on Noah's ark and could take only one thing that starts with the letter A, I would take an ..." (They state something other than what the other persons said.)

After the last person, then the first person starts: "If I was going on Noah's ark and could take only one thing that starts with the letter B, I would take a ..." Then the next person repeats: "If I was going on Noah's ark and could take only one thing that starts with the letter B, I would take a ..." (They state something other than what the first person said.) Then the next person repeats: "If I was going on Noah's ark and could take only one thing that starts with the letter B, I would take a ..." (They state something other than what the other persons said.)

This continues through the alphabet.

Charles Stambaugh NHBDevotions@gmail.com

This is licensed under the Creative Commons Attribution-Noncommercial 4.0 International License under New Heart Beat Ministries. You may not use the material for commercial purposes. It is not copyright material, which means you do not need permission to reproduce, distribute, edit, remix, or build upon.

If I Was Driving On A Trip

The object is for children to think of places they could drive to that start with progressing letters of the alphabet. You need at least one adult and two young children.

The first person starts out by saying: "If I was driving on a trip and I would go to a place that starts with the letter A, Alaska." Then the next person repeats: "If I was driving on a trip and I would go to a place that starts with the letter A, Applebee." (They state something other than what the first person said.) Then the next person repeats: "If I was driving on a trip and I would go to a place that starts with the letter A, ..." (They state something other than what the other persons said.)

After the last person, then the first person starts: "If I was driving on a trip and I would go to a place that starts with the letter B, Baseball game." Then the next person repeats "If I was driving on a trip and I would go to a place that starts with the letter B, bathroom." (They state something other than what the first person said.) Then the next person repeats: "If I was driving on a trip and I would go to a place that starts with the letter B, ....." (They state something other than what the other persons said.)

This continues through the alphabet.

Charles Stambaugh NHBDevotions@gmail.com

This is licensed under the Creative Commons Attribution-Noncommercial 4.0 International License under New Heart Beat Ministries. You may not use the material for commercial purposes. It is not copyright material, which means you do not need permission to reproduce, distribute, edit, remix, or build upon.

When I Grow Up, I Want to....

The object is for children to think of names, places and jobs that start with progressing letters of the alphabet. You need at least one adult and two young children.

The first person starts out by saying: "When I grow up I want to marry a person whose name starts with the letter A, Adam. I want to live in Alabama and want to sell Apples" Then the next person repeats: "When I grow up I want to marry a person whose name starts with the letter A, Alice. I want to live in Alaska and want to fly an airplane." (They state something other than what the first person said.) Then the next person repeats: "If I was driving on a trip and I would go to a place that starts with the letter A, ..." (They state something other than what the other persons said.)

After the last person, then the first person starts: "When I grow up I want to marry a person whose name starts with the letter B, Ben. I want to live in Baltimore and want to sell baseballs." Then the next person repeats When I grow up I want to marry a person whose name starts with the letter B, Bruce. I want to live in Britain and want to build buildings." (They state something other than what the first person said.) Then the next person repeats When I grow up I want to marry a person whose name starts with the letter B (They state something other than what the other persons said.)

This continues through the alphabet.

This game was made up by my granddaughters.

Charles Stambaugh NHBDevotions@gmail.com

This is licensed under the Creative Commons Attribution-Noncommercial 4.0 International License under New Heart Beat Ministries. You may not use the material for commercial purposes. It is not copyright material, which means you do not need permission to reproduce, distribute, edit, remix, or build upon.

Find a Word that Starts With the Letter...

When traveling on a trip two people try to find printed words on signs, trucks or anything outside the car. They start with the letter A and then go through the alphabet. They can only skip two letters. This can be played together with the person who sees the word and saying it first getting a point. This can be played with each having their own race through the alphabet the person who sees the word and saying it first can go to the next letter.

This game was made up by my granddaughters.

Charles Stambaugh NHBDevotions@gmail.com

This is licensed under the Creative Commons Attribution-Noncommercial 4.0 International License under New Heart Beat Ministries. You may not use the material for commercial purposes. It is not copyright material, which means you do not need permission to reproduce, distribute, edit, remix, or build upon.